

Nineteenth Annual Fort Ticonderoga
Seminar on the American Revolution

Friday-Sunday, September 22-24, 2023

Fort Ticonderoga presents the Nineteenth Annual Seminar on the American Revolution September 22-24, 2023, in the Mars Education Center. This annual premier seminar focused on the military, political, social, and material culture history of the American Revolution features scholars from across North America and Europe. Register by July 15th and save $25.

Friday, September 22, 2023

8:00am-4:00pm “Forts, Raids, Battles and Mayhem: The Schoharie Valley, 1775-1780”—Fort Ticonderoga and America’s History, LLC partners to offer a one-day Revolutionary War bus tour led by Jeff O’Conner and Bruce Venter. Jeff is the author of The Old Stone Fort: Guardian of Schoharie County History Since 1772 and an experienced tour guide. A complete tour description is on the America’s History website. The cost is $145 per person (includes lunch, materials, and refreshments). To register, call 703-785-4373 or visit www.AmericasHistoryLLC.com.

6:00-7:00pm Opening Reception—Join seminar faculty and museum staff at an opening reception in the Mars Education Center with light refreshments and cash bar (included in registration fee, but reservations are required).

7:00-7:45pm Highlights from the Robert Nittolo Collection—Fort Ticonderoga’s Curator Dr. Matthew Keagle shares highlights from the Robert Nittolo Collection related to the War for American Independence.

Saturday, September 23, 2023

9:00am Welcome—Beth Hill, President and CEO, Fort Ticonderoga.

9:15-9:45am “The Black Servants of Major-General Gilbert du Motier, Marquis de Lafayette”— How did Lafayette go from viewing Black enslaved people as chattel property, to becoming one of the leading abolitionist voices of his era? This presentation examines how Lafayette’s abolitionist ideology was shaped by the Black Patriots he encountered—including eight known Black servants hired out to him. Justin B. Clement is Historic Site Supervisor of Pottsgrove Manor, and author of Patriots of African Descent at the Valley Forge Encampment of 1777–1778: A Historic Resource Study.

10:00-10:30am In the Wake of the British Retreat: Sir Guy Carleton’s Book of Negroes and the Enslaved Population of Rhode Island—British Commander-in-Chief Sir Guy Carleton oversaw the retreat from North America, during which he recorded in his Book of Negroes the age, gender, and reported home locations of the enslaved people owned by departing Loyalists. This paper analyzes this data, with special attention to Rhode Island's entries, to make broader inferences about the practice of slavery prior to the American Revolution. With her advisor, Catherine W. Zipf, Isabelle J. Courtney is an interpreter for Coggeshall Farm Museum and Linden Place, and a researcher for the Bristol Historical & Preservation Society.

10:45-11:15am "Naked and Torn by the Grapeshot": Fort Mercer and the History, Archaeology, and Public Perceptions of a Mass Burial Space at Red Bank Battlefield Park—During the summer of 2022, as part of a public archaeology program at Red Bank Battlefield Park in Gloucester County, New Jersey, a mass burial space was discovered, thought to contain the remains of Hessian soldiers who lost their lives in the attack on Fort Mercer, October 22, 1777. A project team of archaeologists, forensic scientists, historians, county employees, volunteers, and university students worked tirelessly to investigate the site. The analyses of artifacts and human remains are ongoing. Dr. Jen Janofsky is the Giordano Fellow in Public History at Rowan University and Director of Red Bank Battlefield Park. Wade P. Catts is a Registered Professional Archaeologist, President of South River Heritage Consulting, and an adjunct professor at Rowan University.

11:30-1:15pm Lunch Break (Box lunch from America's Fort Café included).

12:30-1:00pm Book Signing at the Museum Store in the Log House.

1:30-2:30pm Hessians: German Soldiers in the American Revolutionary War—Between 1776 and 1783, Great Britain hired more than thirty thousand German soldiers to fight in its war against the American rebels. Collectively known as Hessians, the troops and accompanying civilians, including hundreds of women and children, spent extended periods of time in locations as dispersed and varied as Canada in the North and West Florida in the South. This presentation highlights some of the experiences of these participants in a war on a distant continent against a people that had done them no harm. Dr. Friederike Baer is Associate Professor of History and Division Head for Arts and Humanities at Penn State Abington College. She is the author of Hessians: German Soldiers in the American Revolutionary War (Oxford University Press, 2022).

2:45-3:15pm Alexander Zuntz in America: A Hessian Army Supplier turned New York Jewish Community Leader and Businessman—

Zuntz, a German Jew, came to New York in the 1770s as a supplier of Hessian auxiliaries. He remained there after the war and was involved in Jewish community life, also pursuing various business activities. By offering the most extensive biography of Alexander Zuntz to date, this presentation provides a new perspective on the German/Jewish immigrant experience in the late colonial and the early American Republic periods. Dr. Armin Langer is a DAAD Visiting Assistant Professor at the Center for European Studies at the University of Florida in Gainesville. He holds a Ph.D. in sociology and has a research focus on immigration and immigrant integration in America and Europe.

3:30-4:00pm The Customs and Temper of Americans? Germans and the Continental Coalition, 1775–1776—When armed rebellion broke out against Britain in 1775, its leaders from New England to the Carolinas wanted to incorporate a variety of colonists into their movement. One of the largest segments of the colonial population was German-speaking people. Local leaders across the colonies and the rebellion’s central leadership in the Continental Congress reached out to German colonists in a variety of ways, mainly trying to include them in diplomatic efforts directed at Native Americans, and in newly-raised bodies of soldiers, from local militias to the regular Continental Army. Jack Weaver is a Ph.D. candidate studying Colonial and Revolutionary North America at West Virginia University; his dissertation examines the intersection of violence, material culture, and Early American identity.

4:00-5:00pm Fort Ticonderoga Museum, King’s Garden, and Museum Store open.

5:00pm Dinner at America’s Fort Café (pre-registration only).

Sunday, September 24, 2023

9:00-9:30am Was there an internal Patriot Coup in Massachusetts beginning April 20, 1775?—In the months leading up to the outbreak of fighting at Lexington and Concord, Massachusetts patriots had established a provisional government and committed to solely defensive action in the event of military escalation—in accordance with long-standing republican principles. This presentation explores the extent to which leaders disregarded these restrictions in the immediate aftermath of April 19, 1775. Dr. Timothy Leech is an independent historian working on a book about the state-formation implications surrounding the establishment of the Continental Army. He received his Ph.D. from Ohio State University in 2017.

9:45-10:15am Fighting Rebellion from America to Jamaica: The Experience of Alexander Lindsay, Lord Balcarres— As major in command of Burgoyne’s light infantry during the Saratoga campaign of 1777, Lord Balcarres saw intensive combat before undergoing captivity with the surrendered “Convention Army.” In 1795, while governor of the West Indian colony of Jamaica, Major-General Balcarres was once again called upon to curb insurrection after the island’s “Maroons”—the freed descendants of escaped slaves—rebelled against British rule. This presentation argues that Balcarres’s controversial handling of the fiercely-contested Maroon War was conditioned by his earlier experiences during the American Revolution. Dr. Stephen Brumwell is an award-winning independent scholar and author living in Amsterdam, The Netherlands.

10:30-11:00am The Rise, Disgrace, and Recovery of Timothy Bedel—New Hampshire’s Timothy Bedel emerged as a multi-talented leader early in the Revolutionary War, but by the summer of 1776 he was dishonorably cashiered from the army after a command debacle in Canada. This presentation explores Bedel’s progress and struggles in the volatile military and political context of the war in the north. Mark R. Anderson is an independent historian whose works include The Battle for the Fourteenth Colony: America’s War of Liberation in Canada, 1774-1776 and Down the Warpath to the Cedars: Indians’ First Battles in the Revolution.

11:15-11:45am New Views of Fort Ticonderoga and Burgoyne's Campaign—In 1776 and 1777, a British soldier named Roger Lamb served in the two major British campaigns that focused on Fort Ticonderoga. He published writings on his service that are well-known, but only recently a volume of manuscript writings has come to light, along with a series of illustrations. This presentation will show Lamb's writings on the campaign that he did not include in his books, and his fanciful pictures illustrating his campaigns. Don N. Hagist is managing editor of Journal of the American Revolution, and has published several books on British soldiers in the American Revolution.

12:00pm Lunch (Box lunch from America's Fort Café included).
